Diminio Beach

About

Diminio beach stretches along the shore of Kato Diminio, two kilometres west of Kiato, on the Corinthian Gulf.

What to expect

A long shore running on towards Kiato, with clear water. What sets it apart is Pefkias: a small pine wood that runs parallel to the beach and gives shade a few metres from the sea. It is thought to have formed, together with the pine wood of Xylokastro, part of a larger forest that once covered the southern shores of the Corinthian Gulf.

Getting there

Two kilometres from the centre of Kiato — close enough to cycle, or to walk along the shore. Kato Diminio has around 1,100 residents, many of them working in tourism.

Useful information

Best time to visit	April–June & September–October (mild, uncrowded)
