Private Greek language and literature lessons in Kiato: Dimitra Stathi

About

When the school year starts, many parents in Corinthia look for help with Greek: essay writing, literature, Ancient Greek or preparation for the Panhellenic university entrance exams. In Kiato, philologist Dimitra Stathi gives private lessons that focus on understanding rather than memorising.

The business in this article is a Visit Corinthia partner. We describe it using what it says about its own work; hours and details can change, so check its page before you go.

Who Dimitra Stathi is

She studied Philology and has many years of teaching experience. In her own words, her aim is to cultivate a love of language and literature and to help students build critical thinking, confidence in written and spoken expression, and steady progress in their exams. Her work goes by the name “Logos Katharos”.

What she teaches

- Private philology lessons, shaped around each student.
- Greek language and literature for every age — from primary school to upper secondary.
- Focused preparation for the Panhellenic and school exams.
- Learning support and one-to-one coaching for written and spoken expression.

How lessons work

Lessons are one-to-one or in small groups, with a schedule and pace adapted to the student. They take place in person in the Kiato area and online, so they can continue when distance or timetables get in the way.

Five questions to ask before starting private lessons

Whichever teacher you choose, these questions help the year start well:

1. What is the goal? Better grades, filling gaps or the Panhellenic exams — each needs a different plan.
2. Where does the student struggle? Comprehension, expression, grammar? A first introductory lesson shows it quickly.
3. One-to-one or group? One-to-one follows the student's pace; a small group adds discussion and usually costs less.
4. In person or online? Online saves travel, as long as the student can focus in front of a screen.
5. How will progress be visible? Written work, practice tests and regular updates for parents make the difference.
